Residential Design Standards

Design approval overview and process

The Design Standards and the Design Review Panel (DRP) are in place to ensure the best possible housing design outcomes throughout the Highland Park neighbourhood.

The DRP is comprised of the Highland Park development team and a specialist Consultant.

Every purchaser has been provided with this Design Standards and Highland Park Protective Covenant Booklet to clearly explain the design and delivery requirements for homes in the Highland Park neighbourhood. A copy should be provided to your builder / designer / architect to assist in the satisfactory delivery of your new home.

Design Approval Process

Step 1. Decide upon your house design.

Step 2. Complete the PLAN APPROVAL APPLICATION FORM with your designer / builder as you review the house plans to ensure you meet all design standards and Plan of Subdivision restrictions.

Step 3. The DRP will review each complete application to ensure your home complies with the Design Standards.

Submissions will only be accepted by post or email.

Initial and subsequent applications can take up to 10 business days.

If your application requires amendments, the DRP will provide written advice detailing the area(s) of non-compliance. Once all amendments are made you are required to resubmit for final approval.

Applications to the DRP will only be reviewed if all the requirements have been submitted. Approval will not be granted on a part application.

If any house design changes are made after DRP approval, all documentation must be resubmitted for approval.

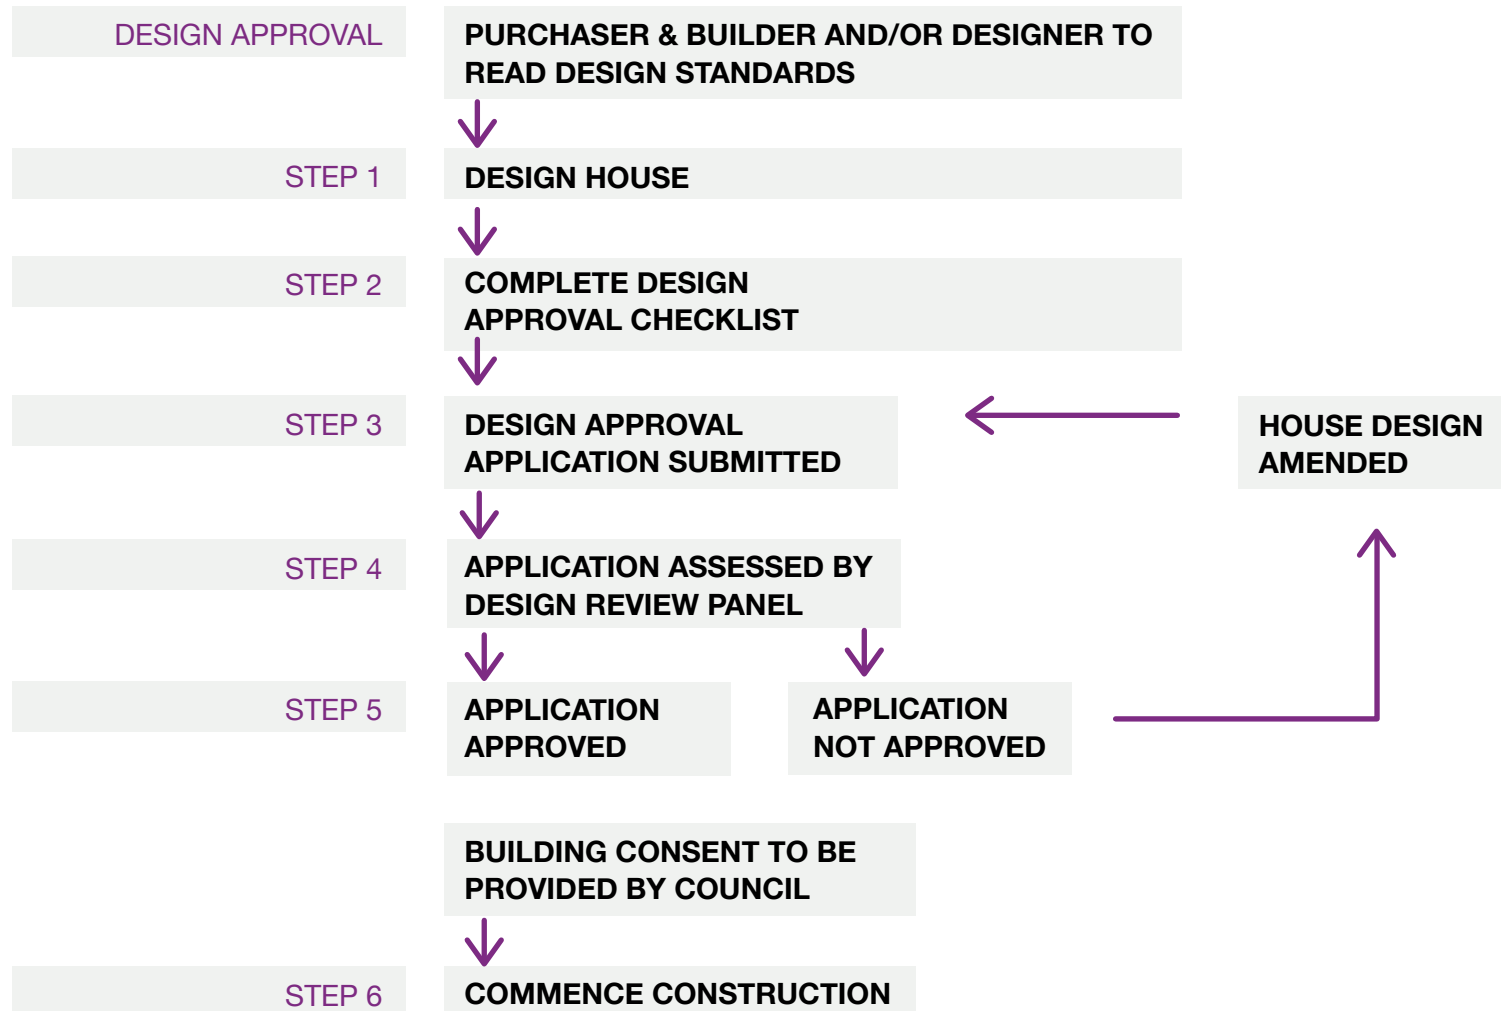

In the instance of a conflict between two or more standards, the DRP will assess the application on its merits and compliance in general with these standards.

The decision to approve or not approve an application is solely the decision of the DRP.

The DRP's approval does not constitute a building consent nor replace the need for a building consent

A building consent must be obtained from Dunedin City Council.
